BRIEF BIO

Silvio Nocera is a Full Professor of Transport Engineering and Planning at the Università Iuav di Venezia. He graduated in Civil Engineering from University of Basilicata in 2000 and earned his PhD in Transport Planning at the Technische Universität München (2004).

At the Università Iuav di Venezia, he teaches undergraduate and graduate courses on Transport (since 2007), and Transport Planning (since 2014). In addition, he held lectures and seminars at the Technical University of Munich (2008-2016), at the Technical University of Vienna (2015), at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver (2016), at the Technical University of Vilnius (2016), at Drexel University of Philadelphia (2017), at the National Technical University of Athens (2017), again at the Technical University of Vienna (2018), at the School of Economics of the University Panthéon-Sorbonne of Paris (2018), at the School of Civil Engineering of the University College Dublin (2019), at the Institute of Transport Studies of Monash University in Melbourne (2020), and at the Institute for Transport and Logistics Studies of the University of Sydney (2020).

His research interests are quite extensive, spanning the economic evaluation of transport systems, the external costs of transportation (he delved particularly deep into the evaluation of carbon dioxide and its effects on global warming), big data and transport, demand responsive transport systems, freight and intermodal transport, intelligent transport systems, and transit quality evaluation. Silvio has published widely, his most recent works having been published in some major journals, and his work is highly cited, with a Scopus H-index of 22. His contributions have been internationally recognised, for example he earned the 2016 Canadian-Italian Innovation Award from the Government of Canada. He serves on the editorial advisory boards of Elsevier journals Transportation Research Interdisciplinary Perspectives and Case Studies on Transport Policy, on the editorial board of Bentham The Open Transportation Journal, and on the editorial boards of MDPI journals Sustainability and Future Transportation.

Silvio's research has attracted substantial funding within a research grant portfolio that includes EU funded research projects with a combined income generation of over 560,000 EUR.
