2018/09/28- 2018/11/2018

Organizes: Asociación por el Empleo y la Integración Social-ASEIS (Association for Employment and Social Integration)

Collaborating Entity: Universidad de Jaén.

SUMMARY:

The INFODAY created by the Asociación por el Empleo y la Integración Social-ASEIS, along with the Universidad de Jaén and the Agencia Sanitaria Alto Guadalquivir in Andújar (Jaén), consists in making known the European research PROVIDE project: Proximity on Violence: Defence & Equity (2018-2019). This project is funded by the European Commission, within the framework of the Justice Programme (REC-VAW-AG-2016-1).

As part of PROVIDE, the Jaén group decided on several meetings that they could not leave the opportunity to show the project on the well-known Researchers European Night when doing the INFODAY. The Researchers European Night is a fantastic showcase which hopes to bring closer the researches world to the general population and also a place where many of the researches done could reach miles of people. That is the reason why we decided to divide the INFODAY into two parts.

The first part consisted in the participation in the mentioned Researchers European Night. From a stand situated at the main hall of the event we made some activities with the youngest population in order to prevent and to make aware about the proximity on violence and in giving information about the project to the adult population interested on our research.

In the second part, public and political authorities, social agents of the city of Jaén and different media were called for the press conference at the conference room of the A3 building of the Universidad de Jaén. The objective was to reach the higher number of people with the exhibition of the PROVIDE project, summarizing the work done up to now, and taking the opportunity, publishing the training course "Expert in Proximity on Violence Management" which is going to be imparted on January and February.

2.3. OBJECTIVE

The objective of the info-day was to get to know the PROVIDE project to the citizenship of Jaén and the rest of Andalusia. It is explained what the project consists of and which are its specific objectives.

It starts speaking and explaining that the research is related with the detection of the proximity on violence linked to the migratory process and attention to the refugee population. The PROVIDE project seeks to guarantee the access to justice and the gender violence victims support or proximity between the migratory population coming to Italy, Spain and France.

So like this, our work is based on key concepts as: refugees/ asylum, minorities, access points, cooperation...

The objectives of PROVIDE are:

- To recognize any gender violence and proximity of violence.
- To create a national and international network between public, private and third sector institutions.
- To allow the multidisciplinary and multi-agenda management.
- To define an integrated protocol suitable with the Operational Guideline, and to adapt it to other European countries.

A review of the project has been made since its beginnings and the training course "Expert on Proximity on Violence Management" has been announced. This course will be imparted to different professionals and social agents from Jaén, from the rest of Andalusia and from the project partner's countries (Italy and France).

Two courses of 25 hours each will be imparted between the months of January and February. They will be managed through Universidad de Jaén's own teaching and it has 5 recognized credits. Macro-transversal themes will be addressed for the identification, prevention and care of the migrant people, refugees and asylum seekers being victims of proximity on violence.

Through the research and through the training of different professionals we want to create a protocol for detection of proximity on violence situations and attention to victims.
