TITLE	The Hittite Religious Festivals of Arinna and Alacahöyük: A Historical-Anthropological Analysis
DESCRIPTION	The project aims to study the festivals of Hittite Anatolia (1700-1200 BC) from a historicalanthropological perspective, taking into account cuneiform textual sources and archaeological data. The focus is on two intersecting case studies: the festivals of the holy city of Arinna, attested in the Hittite textual documentation, and the archaeological remains of the site of Alacahöyük (Turkey). The project explores the role of Hittite festivals as 'total social facts,' as defined by M. Mauss. The approach is based on the analytical integration of texts and images within the framework of current anthropological perspectives on ritual sensoriality. The first step of the research consists of a critical review of anthropological perspectives on festivals with the aim of tracing the history of research on the subject and thus outlining the anthropological approaches to be used in the analysis of Hittite festivals. The second step concerns the study of the relationships between the ceremonial calendar and seasonal rhythms with the corresponding productive activities. The third focuses on the festival as a collective communicative event of political-religious messages. Finally, the festivals will be studied as a 'theatrical' event defined by a sensory atmosphere and specific bodily perceptions

TITLE	Truces within Sicilian Vespers War (1282-1372)
DESCRIPTION	The project aims to study the truces that punctuated the War of the Vespers, which began in 1282 with the revolt of Palermo and ended in 1372. The analysis of a long time span will allow to reveal the web of relationships intertwined between Sicilian, Angevine and Aragonese kings, the papacy, nobles, cities and towns, and delve into the political, military, economic and religious implications of the truces. One will also examine local truces, agreed by the barons during the war between the Latin and Catalan factions. The research will begin by cataloging chronicles and published sources. Then the research fellow will look for unpublished documents in the Archivio di Stato di Palermo, the Archivo de la Corona de Aragón, and the Archivio Segreto Vaticano. The main objectives of the project are: to examine the terminology used in chronicles and documents; to focus on the motivations, duration and stability of the truces; to understand the causes of their violation; to weigh the geographical extension of the measures; to verify the action of mediators and ambassadors.
