FINAL REPORT

During my visit to the University of Palermo, hosted by the Centre for Advanced Studies, I had the opportunity to participate in several significant academic events:

- May 14, 2025: I attended several project presentations from the RoboticsLab of the University of Palermo, led by Professor Antonio Chella.
- May 15, 2025: I delivered a presentation titled "Artificial General Intelligence and NARS," where I introduced the emerging field of Artificial General Intelligence (AGI) and my research project NARS (Non-Axiomatic Reasoning System), followed by a Q&A session.
- May 22, 2025: I gave another talk, "Self-awareness and Self-control in NARS," which explored NARS's ability to monitor its reasoning activities. I also discussed how this capability relates to broader topics, such as emotion and consciousness of intelligent systems. The session concluded with a Q&A discussion.

In the final week of my visit, I will continue exchanging ideas and insights with colleagues and students at the University of Palermo. Additionally, I have been invited by the Italian media outlet Whitehall Reply (www.reply.it) for a podcast interview, where I will discuss my research in AGI and my experiences during my visit.
